COURT REBUKES LAWYER FOR URGING HASTE

"Unduly Harsh," Labor Bureau's Counsel Is Told, Pushing Building Violation Cases.

Since the burning of the Diamond Candy factory in Williamsburg and the large loss of life in it the State Department of Labor has made it a rule to oppose any applications for adjournment in the trial of those summoned for violations of the building laws. Because of this rule Frederick Cunningham, chief counsel for the Department, was rebuked by Justice Collins in the Court of Special Sessions, Manhattan, to-day, when he opposed the application of a dozen or more defendants charged with failing to carry out the mandates of the Department.

"You are unduly harsh and unnecessarily severe in opposing these requests for adjournments," Justice Collins told Mr. Cunningham, "and I want to tell you that you stand here in the same position as the District Attorney or any other lawyer. You cannot force this court to take any attitude of undue severity by your actions."

Mr. Cunningham did not reply to Justice Collins's comment except to say that he considered it his duty, in view of the dangers incurred by occupants of the buildings complained of, to insist that summary action be taken by the court.

She had been treated for heart trouble and was ill yesterday. Connors took her for a ride last night and she died while the car was speeding along the Shore Road toward Bath Beach.

SEES CHEAP MILK IN DIRECT SELLING BY DAIRY LEAGUE

Dillon Goes Up-State to Urge Co-Operation in New Distribution Plan.

John J. Dillon, State Commissioner of Foods and Markets, began to-day a series of conferences with up-State farmers and dairymen looking to the forming of a co-operative association for the shipment of milk direct to the butchers of New York City for distribution in all five boroughs.

It was said at Mr. Dillon's office that several local associations had already been formed and were ready for a general agreement under which the dairy output could be marketed here without the aid of the big local distributors.

The Commissioner's tour will take him to all of the chief milk-producing counties in the State. In each county he has arranged to meet the members of the State Dairymen's League and perfect the plans for action.

"With proper co-operation," said Mr. Dillon, "I predict that milk prices of ten or twenty years ago will prevail here. It is not too much to hazard a prediction that milk will be sold at certain seasons of the year as low as 5 cents a quart."

Milk can be sold in this city at 5 cents, according to a statement made to-day by William Grant Brown, who was referee in the milk investigation which was held five years ago.

"A farm products commission should be formed for the regulation of the sale of milk and all other dairy products," said Mr. Brown.

A failure for the second time in his life after he had twice won fortune, Jacob Haupt, sixty-six years old, of No. 328 Sixth Street, a cigar manufacturer, shot himself this morning in his store. He was taken to Bellevue Hospital, where it was said he would die.

Haupt was the owner of a cigar factory employing 200 persons eighteen years ago. Investments in Cuban plantations were wiped out at the time of the Spanish war. He started again and built up a smaller but successful business, but fortune again turned. He was compelled to close his store and to-day was to move.

Commissioner Hartigan, City's Honest Food Expert, Praises Housewives' Plan

Secretary of Mayor's Committee on Food Supply Indorses Evening World's Movement to Protect the Home and Reduce Cost of Living.

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

More inquiries are being received from surrounding neighborhoods as to the requirements of joining the Housewives' Protective Association. Any woman interested in her household may become a member by signing the application blank and receiving the coin of protection.

Her place of residence makes no difference, and all organizations interested in the question are also invited to join.

No dues, no fees. The purposes of the Housewives' Protective Association are:

To reduce the cost of living wherever possible.
To fight high prices that are artificial.
To secure just weights and measures.
To eliminate petty graft on the common commodities.

To stand together against unwarrented strikes on the necessities of life.
To exchange opinions and views through the columns of The Evening World.

As already stated in these columns, the main question being investigated at present is that of milk. With the return of Deputy Attorney General Lewis, who is scheduled to continue his investigation to-morrow, more developments are expected.

The Housewives' Protective Association will be represented, and every angle of the inquiry will be carefully considered. Watchful working is the slogan of the association.

Also, various authorities are being consulted as to the suggestion of the association for the establishment of a Milk Service Commission similar to the Public Service Commission, in order to secure proper regulation.

In this connection a significant statement is that of Attorney General John B. Coleman, who investigated the question of milk in 1909 and was in favor of a court or commission to decide this question. He stated:

"I contend that if any one within the State of New York devotes his property to the business of trafficking in milk he thereby is compelled to submit to the regulation by the Legislature of such business and to a provision that he shall not buy from the producer at a less amount than that fixed by the court or Milk Commission, or sell to the consumer at a greater amount than that fixed by the same bodies, and that he should be limited to such profit in such business as the Legislature, acting through the court or the commission, shall deem reasonable."

"As I have stated before, it is in the interest of the State that all of the people of the State be furnished with an adequate supply of wholesome milk at a reasonable price. And it is the duty of the State to so regulate the purchase of such milk from the producers that the middlemen will not be able to compel such producers to sell their milk at less than the cost of production."

"It is in the interest of the State to see that the producer is encouraged in the production of this necessity of life, and to that end, to so regulate the conduct of the middleman that he will not be able to compel the producer to sell to him at a smaller amount than the cost of production, plus a reasonable profit to the producer. And it is likewise in the interest of the State and within its power to so regulate the conduct of the middleman that he shall sell such milk to the consumer at a price which will yield him a reasonable return on the capital invested, but not an inordinate or unreasonable one."

HARTIGAN INDORSES HOUSEWIVES' ASSOCIATION.

The following letter from Joseph Hartigan, Commissioner of the Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measures and Secretary of the Mayor's Committee on Food Supply of the City of New York, speaks for itself and is indicative of the public interest aroused in this movement:

Oct. 17, 1916.
New York Evening World, Park Row, New York City:

I am interested in the very excellent series of articles you are publishing in The Evening World relative to the organization known as "The Housewives' Protective Association."

With the rapidly changing economic conditions taking place, particularly in New York, it is noteworthy for a great metropolitan newspaper such as The Evening World to assume the responsibility for fostering public opinion through the medium of this association to attempt the education and protection of the consumer upon matters having to do with the average household.

The food supply situation is 45 per cent. important to the average household in the City of New York, because 45 per cent. of the family income nowadays is spent for food supplies. The public needs to be intelligently awakened as to the underlying causes which are responsible for the increasing higher "high cost of living." It is just such an association as you have started which can be informative to its members and to the readers of The Evening World.

The consumers must have an effective organization. The various lines of business with which the consumer deals for foodstuffs are in some measure organizations for their self-protection. It is high time that the consumers, through a powerful organization, can be raised to a position where they can authoritatively ask the wherfore of prevailing high prices and to exercise their right in demanding measures of relief through the force of public opinion.

The City of New York, in my judgment, is on the eve of entering into a programme for constructive relief through present and new channels for bringing down the prices on foodstuffs. There are a multiplicity of causes, some more prominent than others. It should be the business of an organization of the character of the Housewives' Protective Association to find out these causes and to apply specific remedies. The housewife can do much to help. Ultimately, however, the man of the household, who foots the bills, must be appealed to to use his influence to effect reformative measures.

You are to be congratulated upon the manner in which you have taken up this cause. It is timely, and perhaps the most important problem confronting the average home in the City of New York.

JOSEPH HARTIGAN, Commissioner of the Mayor's Bureau of Weights and Measures and Secretary of the Mayor's Committee on Food Supply of the City of New York.

Commissioner Hartigan also takes issue with the average housewife in her laxity in seeing that she gets her just dues.

This is how he sums it up: "For instance, take the average housekeeper's method of purchasing. 'Send me a basket of potatoes, a jar of bacon, glass of jelly and 10 cents' worth of Schweitzer cheese,' she cheerfully instructs her grocer. 'Except in rare cases, she is not at all concerned as to the exact cost and weight of any of these commodities. The grocer can send her light weight, or he can charge a penny or two more, and she never knows the difference.'

"Without knowing it, this type of buyer puts a direct premium on dishonesty, for in these days of keen competition, high prices and scant profits, the small retailer is usually hard pushed to make a living, and the temptation to short weight and overcharge is a serious one. If this competitor around the corner is able to cut prices by giving short weight, he is practically forced to adopt these same trade-bringing tactics or see his competitor beat him to it."

"It takes a strong man and an honest one to resist the pressure toward fraud caused by this inbusiness-like indifference of the careless buyer. She does not, as a rule, realize what an important place she holds in the scheme of things, or that her purchasing power is a prolific source of good or evil in the economic world."

"Every time she buys a commodity she registers a silent vote for or against the cause of trade dishonesty."

"Her vote is negative if, when she finds that she has received short weight in any commodity, she says to herself: 'It's only a few cents—what's the use of making a fuss about it? She forgets that what may seem a small matter to her may bring real hardship to some woman of narrower means. Sometimes false pride and not carelessness is at the bottom of the negative vote."
